To the Embassy of the Russian Federation in Brazil

I, TIAGO VENTURA COSTA, a Brazilian citizen, respectfully request that the authorities of the Russian Federation grant me political asylum, pursuant to Article 14 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees, and the 1967 Protocol, which guarantee the right of any person to seek international protection when facing a well-founded fear of persecution.

I declare that, according to my personal allegations and understanding, I have been subjected to political persecution in Brazil. I affirm that I reported what, according to my perceptions, appeared to be the actions of a criminal group which, in my interpretation, was in possession of highly sensitive military equipment allegedly associated with technologies used by NATO member states. Based on my understanding, such equipment would possess advanced intelligence-gathering capabilities and would be employed abusively.

I further state that, according to my personal perceptions, I have been targeted by electromagnetic radiation attacks for nearly half a decade—something I interpret as a form of coercion and retaliation for my reports. Additionally, I declare that, according to my perceptions and the accounts of other individuals, I and hundreds of other Brazilian citizens appear to be experiencing symptoms consistent with what is internationally known as the “Havana Syndrome.” Based solely on my personal interpretation, I believe these effects may be connected to aerospace-based infrastructure attributed to NATO member states. I emphasize that these claims reflect only my personal understanding and have not been acknowledged by Brazilian authorities.

My complaints, however, have been classified by national authorities as unfounded or “fantastical,” which resulted in my arrest. I remained detained for approximately seven months—a situation I consider unjust and which, in my view, intensified my fear of persecution and the perception of lacking effective protection.

Given this combination of factors—my allegations of persecution, the absence of adequate response from national authorities, my perception of risks to my physical and psychological integrity, and my prior deprivation of liberty—I respectfully request that the Russian Federation examine my asylum application in accordance with its internal procedures and humanitarian commitments.

I remain at the disposal of the Embassy to provide documentation, testimonies, records, or any additional information necessary for the assessment of my case.

Sincerely,

TIAGO VENTURA COSTA
